

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has the power to hold Pappas accountable for their actions.

Pappas' actions are another example of how Big Media is suffocating democracy itself and the dangers too many media sources owned by single entities.

Pappas Telecasting Companies' 'donation' of $325,000 in airtime to Republican candidates in certain areas is yet another example of a powerful media group abusing its privileged access to the public airwaves.

Localism is not served when a corporate headquarters decides to provide one side in local elections a louder voice than others. During election season, local audiences should be offered genuine debate -- not disingenuous offers to "purchase" an equal amount of response time.

Pappas uses the public airwaves free of charge and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. Pappas' actions are legally questionable and cast doubt on whether Pappas truly intends to serve the public interest. Their actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. Further, they show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than just a returned postcard. Thank you. This is docket 04-233.

Thank you for letting me add my voice to the concerns that are felt by many of us.
